ID Logistics receives an award from French President François Hollande for its “Creative Audacity”

Cavaillon, 27 September 2013 – The President of the French Republic, François Hollande, has today awarded the Prize for Creative Audacity to Eric Hémar, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of ID Logistics, in a ceremony held at the Elysée Palace.

Founded in 1995 by Marc Ladreit de Lacharrière, Chairman of Fimalac, the Prize for Creative Audacity is given out every year to a listed French company that has simultaneously managed to increase its earnings, profitability and workforce in France. The panel of judges comprises former winners and leading French entrepreneurs and business managers and is chaired by the founder of the awards. This year, it was decided to give the prize to ID Logistics for the Group’s fast-paced development and performance and for its positive contribution to the economic fabric of France.

Commenting on receipt of the award, Eric Hémar, Chairman and CEO of ID Logistics, said: “It is a tremendous honour for us to receive the Prize for Creative Audacity in person from the President of the French Republic.

First of all, I would like to thank our customers who were confident enough to place their trust in us when we started up our business and those who came on board more recently. They are our partners for the long term and have made the development of our Group possible. This Prize is an award for them and their “creative confidence” in us, just as much as it is an award for “creative audacity”.

The Prize also represents a tribute to a human and entrepreneurial story that began 12 years ago. It is the story of men and women who made a commitment in the firm belief that their logistics know-how and expertise would take them beyond the borders of their domestic market, supporting major industrial groups and retailers with their international expansion. I truly hope that the strong entrepreneurial values guiding us prompt all of our employees to keep this spirit of “creative audacity” intact and maintain our unstinting commitment to innovation in our industry.

In an economy in which service is increasingly becoming a crucial differentiating factor, logistics will play an increasingly critical role in our customers’ strategy. ID Logistics firmly believes that logistics has a bright future ahead of it – it is precisely because we provide each of our customers with high value-added services boosting their competitiveness that they are able to expand in their market.”

Founded in Cavaillon in 2001 with two logistics hubs and an initial workforce of 200, ID Logistics now has over 12 000 employees (4,500 in France) at 168 locations in 14 countries.
